

SENIOR LECTURER: ARCHITECTURE (Permanent)

School of Architecture, Planning and Geomatics Faculty of Engineering and the Built Environment

The School of Architecture, Planning and Geomatics at the University of Cape Town seeks to appoint a Senior Lecturer in a full-time position in Architecture.

Within the School, the demographic diversity of South African society is currently under represented, where students enter with different cultural backgrounds and learning experiences. Today, at a time of exciting change within the School and the University, this posting is seeking in particular black South African candidates with demonstrable talent and passion for the making and teaching of architecture, as well as the capacity to work within a rigorous research environment, and who can bring new perspectives to our academic community.

Minimum requirements:

- A Masters' degree (professional) or 5-year Bachelors' degree in architecture or equivalent
- Teaching experience at the undergraduate and/or postgraduate level
- A demonstrable record of research scholarship, for example a PhD degree and/or creative works that would equate to a PhD degree in architecture or equivalent

The candidate should have a defined area of research, and demonstrate a creative and innovative spirit in teaching and practice. He/she should also demonstrate an ability to teach at the intersection of different subjects through studios, workshops and seminars to students from a diversity of backgrounds. The candidate must be willing to engage across the various disciplines within the architecture department, with a strong emphasis on the integration between Design and cognate fields, such as History and Theory, Environmental Studies and/or Technology.

We seek an individual who can add new dimensions to our intellectual activities; help us change design in new ways that are responsive to broader social and environmental needs; and who are ready to teach studios, workshops and seminars. Staff responsibilities are teaching, research, administration and social responsibility.
